Clean up success!

by Jeff Nazzaro

Close to 100 environmentally concerned Wilmingtonites hit some of the town's murkier water ways Saturday for the first Wilmington Watershed Cleanup.

The all-volunteer squad hacked and waded its way through cleanup sites at Silver Lake, Lubbers Brook, the Phillips Avenue area and the library parking lot on Wildwood Street. In addition, a neighborhood group in the West Street and Suncrest Avenue area cleaned up a vernal pool there while a Veranda Avenue pick-up posse patrolled their own neighborhood.

In the process, the crew hauled out "literally tons of stuff" and had a good, safe time doing it, too, according to Wilmington Conservation Administrator Anne Gagnon.

"There was a great turnout and beautiful weather," Gagnon said. "And there were no mishaps at all This was a really good time to do it. We really lucked out with the weather."

And with the help the Wilmington Conservation Commission received in putting the event together.

Wilmington's Joe Langone volunteered six men, a dump truck and a front-end loader to help cart away junk and debris sorted out of the selected areas.

Some of the more unusual finds? In addition to the expected tires, trash and lumber, there was a giant, stuffed mouse, which became the Cleanup mascot for the day; a pocketbook complete with credit cards; and a few wallets. Word also had it that Silver Lake cleanup divers detected an automobile resting at the bottom of the lake.

The Lowell Street Dunkin' Donuts provided complimentary coffee and donuts to the busy volunteers and, when all the Wilmington DPW-donated trash bags were full and work gloves soiled, there was a Michelle's Ice Cream - giving hot dog cookout.

At the wrap-up festivities held at cleanup headquarters at the Glen Road athletic fields, there were drawings, with Cleanup T-shirts, binoculars, Body Shop gift baskets and other prizes being raffled off.

The day was such a success, according to Gagnon, that Cleanup organizers are considering holding another one in the spring. Whether or not that happens, they will definitely be hip deep in the town's streams again next fall.

Gagnon called the event "very uplifting."

"It was really nice the way everybody worked together so well," she said.

But could face $400,000 in tax abatements

Town has $287,000 surplus

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Town of Wilmington is looking at $287,000 budget surplus, according to Town Accountant Michael Morris, but Morris is recommending that the town keep those funds in reserve, primarily as provision for abatements.

The bulk of the $287,000 comes in the form of a reduced Middlesex County Retirement System assessment as a result of a bill filed by Rep. James Miceli and signed by Gov. William Weld. This will save the town $255,000.

The town has also received an additional $38,000 in state aid and a Shawsheen Tech assessment decreased by $5,000. Statutory assessments were increased by approximately $11,000.

In a budget update to Town Manager Michael Cairra, Morris states that after consulting with Finance Director Joseph Peters and Principal Assessor Skip Moynihan, he is "recommending that the town maintain the operating budget as voted at Town Meeting and reserve these funds in order to address other financial issues

"The town currently has several outstanding cases pending with the Appellate Tax Board, including a significant case with Sweetheart Plastics. The result of these abatement cases most likely will total in excess of $400,000," Morris states in the memo.

"If the town did not have sufficient reserves, these funds would have to be raised by reducing operation budgets and possibly requesting a waiver of the Education Reform Act in order to set a tax rate," Morris warns.

"The town cannot set a tax rate without funding overlay deficits ... therefore, it is my recommendation to apply any available funds to the overlay reserve account in order to address these potential deficits," Morris states in the memo.

"The town is faced with several serious but not insurmountable financial problems," Morris' memo concludes. "If the town is to resolve these problems, the town must continue to take a conservative financial course."

Cairra, who reviewed the memo at Monday's board of selectmen's meeting, said he "welcome[s] the savings from the Middlesex County retirement funds" and that he concurs entirely with Morris' recommendations.

The bottom line...

The bus is there

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Wilmington Finance Committee and the Wilmington School Committee agreed Tuesday night to fund a bus for the Nichols Street area for the duration of the 1994-95 school year. But just where those funds will come from is still to be decided.

During a nearly three hour meeting in front of some 50 concerned parents, Finance Committee Chairman George Hooper squared off against School Committee Chairman Paul Palizzolo, who was before the fincom asking for the roughly $25,000 needed to lease an additional bus for this year.

Hooper didn't see the bus as an "unforeseen expense" and believes Palizzolo already has the necessary money in his own $13.8 million budget.

"This $25,000 is less than two tenths of one percent" of the school committee budget, Hooper said. "You knew before and now you come before us"

The school committee argued that increased student enrollment and the failure of a Proposition 2 1/2 override last spring left them without a needed bus and thus more walkers, including many new students in the heavily trafficked Nichols Street area.

"It was unforeseen as to where these [newly enrolled] kids were going to land," Committeeman Brad Jackson said.

Hooper also questioned the accuracy of a budget report submitted to the finance committee by the school board. He suggested that Palizzolo and School Committee Business Manager Peter DeRoeve meet with Town Manager Michael Cairra and Town Accountant Michael Morris to decipher the report and see if the school committee indeed has funds available for the additional bus. That meeting was agreed to by both sides, though no date has been set.

"We just want to clear the air and get this thing looked at," Hooper said.

If it is determined that the school committee does need funds for the bus, Hooper stated that he would support allocating those monies.

"I'm speaking for myself," he said. "I'll go to the wall for it."

As of Tuesday, the school committee had voted to fund a bus through its own budget up until September 30, at which time it hoped the finance committee would pick-up the $25,000 tab and reimburse the school committee for the money it had already spent for the additional bus.

Wednesday, the school committee was scheduled to meet with Palizzolo vowing to ask for a vote to fund the bus for the remainder of the school year. Palizzolo expects that vote to be an easy one. "I feel very confident that it'll pass," he stated.

But even with that vote, the question of where the money ultimately will come from remains.

Palizzolo insists the school committee doesn't have the money. Hooper believes it does. And Hooper also believes school committee budget figures, when analyzed in-depth, will bear him out.

"They have a business manager [DeRoeve], we have a CPA [Morris]. There's a big difference there," Hooper said.

But the consensus from those in attendance seemed to be that the finance committee is just using the school committee budget issue as a bureaucratic way of simply saying no.

Jackson said he prefers "government by action rather than government by meetings."

"If you're going to shoot us down, do it now," he told the Hooper.

But Hooper was looking for answers from Palizzolo as to why the school committee could not pay for an additional bus with its own funds. Hooper's questioning had the flavor of a cross-examination and prompted Palizzolo to remark "you asked more questions today than at the budget meeting."

Palizzolo was backed up by residents, including Carol Neville, who asked why there were more questions Tuesday than when the budget was originally presented to the finance committee.

"It was in balance," was Hooper's repeated response before he slapped a biting rhetorical "is there something you don't understand?" at Neville.

But that wasn't the only unpleasantry at the meeting. Hooper also shot back at School Committeeman Bob Young, who previously had said the finance committee was "stiffing" the school committee.

"If there's any stiffing going on here, it's the school committee to the people of this town."

Hooper later shouted Palizzolo down, calling him "out of line" when he suggested that school committee complaints of budgetary woes were "falling on deaf ears."

Whether or not the school committee budget can withstand an additional $25,000 expenditure will be determined later.

"I'm totally confused," Nichols Street resident Tom Duffy said near the close of Tuesday's meeting. "Do we have a bus or don't we?"

"The bottom line," according to Hooper, "is that we're going to make sure there is a bus there."

Farmstand will be BZ

by Jeff Nazzaro

The 12th Annual WBZ Farm Stand will stampede into the Shriner's Auditorium in Wilmington this Saturday from sunup 'til 4 p.m. with plenty o' fun for everyone and proceeds to benefit Boston's Children's Hospital.

"It's a throwback to the old times when people would bring homemade jams and jellies and barter with people," said Wilmington's Connie Lee, a WBZ employee.

Last year the event attracted some 30,000-35,000 people, but this year organizers, led by WBZ radio mainstay Dave Maynard, expect close to 50,000.

Breakfast will be available when the doors at the Shriner's Auditorium open at 6:00 a.m. - listen for the roosters - before the lunch grills are fired up around 11.

In addition to shopping - or bartering - for the bushels of available local produce, including pumpkins, farm standers can anticipate a host of activities for the kids and a live, on-site broadcast from WBZ (AM 1030).

"It's a good time," Lee said. "It's a real good time."

Tribal Rythms coming to Shawsheen School

Wilmington students at the Shawsheen Elementary School will participate in a unique educational performing arts program, Tribal Rhythms, presented by Young Audiences of Massachusetts Thursday, Sept. 22 and Tues., Sept. 27. Young Audiences is a non-profit organization which brings live professional dance, theater and music education programs to schools.

The Shawsheen Elementary program is entitled Tribal Rhythms. The "Tribal Rhythms Celebration" has been presented to more than 250,000 people since 1970 and was featured in the "Arts in Education" symposium of the Harvard Educational Review in 1991. The program is highly participatory. Students become part of the dramatic stories, create spontaneous music or handmade musical instruments, and move together in "the dance of the mysterious creature." Tribal Rhythms is designed to build community spirit, foster multicultural understanding and promote cooperation, respect, creativity and critical thinking. A magical blend of music, dance, and dramatic stories inspired by the ancient origins of the arts.

All grades, K-five will be participating. Tribal Rhythms will be conducted as four programs over the two days. The event is fully funded by the Shawsheen Elementary School PAC.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS

IRA OR ANNUITIES?

Where are you going to put your retirement money? Both IRAs and annuities enable you to let savings grow tax deferred until you take the money out. Both penalize you if you try to withdraw funds before you reach the age of 59 1/2. But there are differences.

The IRA generally grows faster than an annuity, because the average expenses are lower. The amount you can contribute is limited to $2,000 a year and if you have invested both deductible and non-deductible funds, distributions will be proportionately taxable and non-taxable.

The major advantages of an annuity is that there is no limit to the amount you can invest, and no time when withdrawals must begin. Also, variable annuities usually permit savers to switch money among investment vehicles with no tax obligations. Many buyers like the guarantee of income for life and the death benefits.

The best bet for most people is first to make deductible contributions to a 401 (k) plan or Keogh, then fund an IRA, and then an annuity.

I'm making a special "Pitch" for JIM MICELI for State Representative

Jim Miceli has always "been there" for the youth in our area.

Whether it's been his sponsorship of Little League teams, softball teams, and other youth activities, Jim understands that our kids matter.

Equally important, however, has been the intern programs at the state house, which allow high school students to have the opportunity to experience government first hand.

The truth is, both the intern programs and Jim himself, have been hits for years.

And even I can appreciate a couple  of hits like that.

This charity begins right here at home

by Capt. Larz Neilson

Mission of Deeds Inc., seeks volunteers for charitable work. Tony Triglione of Suppliers Auto Parts Inc., of Wilmington is the person who seeks volunteers for charitable work.

Mission of Deeds Inc delivers basic furniture and household goods to people who are leaving a shelter or after a period of homelessness to start a new life. Battered women with children, older persons who have been abandoned and persons who have lost their homes and possessions and need the help which volunteers can provide is their object.

Mission of Deeds, Inc. is a Wilmington organization which also has locations in Woburn, Reading, North Reading and Tewksbury. It does not answer "blind calls which request assistance. "We like people who go through a charity," says Tony. "The charity knows whether that person is in need. We do not turn anyone down."

Triglione was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club of Wilmington on August 31. He told of an experience during a religious "retreat" and how it helped him to decide on founding a charity which could help people in need.

He had been impressed with the work of "My Brother's Keeper," a Brockton based charity which helps abandoned or abused women or children. This led him to create Mission of Deeds, in February of 1993. He gave it a focus which was similar to "My Brother's Keeper."

Tony started by funding the charity himself. He donated office space and warehouse space to the project. He formulated and developed the charity, and selected a board of directors who could help in the project, its development, spread the word about it, and seek financial and material support.

The new charity's first "customer" was a woman who had been referred by the Woburn Council of Social Concern. It was a woman who kept her children's clothing in trash bags, because she had nothing else in which to store the clothing. Mission of Deeds gave that woman a bureau, and received its first smile of appreciation.

To expand the awareness of Mission of Deeds Triglione put small notices in local church bulletins. Slowly, through word of mouth and by connections made by board members and social agencies the number of requests kept increasing.

"Requests for household furnishings seem to cluster around the first of the month, when people move out of shelters. They often have nothing but a suitcase and a couple of children. "Most donations go to such people," says Tony.

Over the past year Tony's team of volunteers have made 81 pickups of furniture, and 50 deliveries.

"Imagine their efforts, hefting 48 box springs, mattresses and frames, 32 bureaus, 19 sofas, 20 chairs, 10 tables, six cribs, two bunk beds and many kitchen chairs, from the homes of donors, and to those of recipients, often up several flights of stairs. That's dedication!"

Requests for services are increasing, says Tony. He would like to put more volunteers to work picking up and delivering furniture, repairing donated items, organizing them and writing a quarterly newsletter.

Tony has hopes of raising $50 to $75 thousand a year, to cover furniture needs, cribs, mattresses and bureaus. Much of the furniture given to recipients has been donated but some of it is purchased by Mission of Deeds. Sometimes the demand exceeds the supply on hand.

State regulations about the spacing of slats on baby cribs sometimes make it necessary for the Mission of Deeds to purchase new cribs, rather than to pass along old ones which fail to meet the regulations.

Major contributions come from restaurants in Woburn, the National Automotive Parts Association, supermarkets and Exide Batteries according to Triglione. Contributions from other companies have made the work possible. Some people, he says who know about Mission of Deeds have gifted the charity in their wills.

He will continue to fund the Mission of Deeds until it can be self-supporting.

"Many people who are charitable will give to outside organizations, but will never get in contact with a local organization such as ours," Tony says. "We seek people who want to help other people, either financially or through direct volunteer work," he says.

People interested in donations, or in serving as a volunteer may call, in Wilmington 657-5135 or 658-4555.

Dear Larz:

Some great news for Wilmington! The First Annual Wilmington Watershed Cleanup was a huge success. Over 80 people gave a hand helping to organize and/or getting "down and dirty" in the water. Joe Langone of Northeastern Development Corp. and his crew generously brought dump trucks and heavy equipment and loaded numerous truckloads of debris. Kelley and Kompany Real Estate donated t-shirts and manned the registration table. The Wilmington Republican Committee hauled piles of brush and trash from the wetlands adjacent to the library parking lot on Wildwood Street. The Garden Club and Rotary Club worked on Rotary Park while the Ipswich River Watershed Association and Leo Kenney of North Reading vernal pool fame manned information tables. Much thanks go to Ken Redman of Pop Warner for helping to coordinate the use of the Town Hall area so that things ran smoothly.

Wilmington citizens who volunteered pulled out truckloads of wood, scrap metal, tires and cinder blocks, from Lubbers Brook, Silver Lake and other sites. Other articles included signs, shopping carts, a stuffed animal, pocketbooks (one with credit cards!) and wallets. Jeff Hull, Ron Swasey, Bob Palmer and the DPW are to be commended as well as Conservation Commission crew bosses Bill Gately, John White, James Morris and Barbara Sullivan and former member Bill MacKinnon.

Kim McDonough organized a Veranda Avenue cleanup while Patty Burke worked on cleaning out a vernal pool at West Street and Suncrest Avenue. Prizes drawn at the end of the event included a pair of binoculars donated by REI, and prizes donated by The Body Shoppe, North Wilmington Shell, Stop and Go Subs and Kelley and Kompany. Food donated by Michelle's Ice Cream and Dunkin Donuts on Lowell Street was greatly appreciated as was the Water Department mailing which informed people of the event made possible by Local Builders Association.

Local developers Jay Tighe and Earl Hupper were working alongside Commission members, town citizens and the Northeastern Development Corp. crew. Everyone pulled together to make the initiative and hard work of Iva Rideout, Martha Stevenson and Ann inehan. Special thanks to everyone I didn't mention here, but that helped out. Watch the papers for coverage of the event (thanks for the coverage so far). If you're sorry you missed it, join us next year for the Second Annual Wilmington Watershed Cleanup!

Sincerely,
Anne Gagnon

When the Town Hall was transferred into the Glen Road School, Town Manager Buzz Stacpzynski asked that the library staff and not the custodians lock up the library each night, checking lighting, securing doors, etc. Library trustees were heatedly opposed. Chairman George Boylen, speaking for the trustees said he felt the town manager, by his proposals is 'endangering the building and the library staff.'

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

In very recent ads, John Desforge stated that he would "fight to finally clean up the Tewksbury dump," among other pledges. I find this statement infuriating at best!

Where have you been, Mr. Desforge, for the past two to three years that we have been living this nightmare and fighting this battle? have you been in the selectmen's meetings, the board of health meetings, state and federal congressional meetings, EPA and DWP meetings, local coalition meetings, the affected neighborhood? Have you contacted me to discuss the issue and fact find? Let me answer those simple questions with a simple answer - you have not!! I am tired of would-be politicians and newly elected politicians running on this issue, getting elected, and then going into hiding on the same issue.

Let me tell all you readers who has done all the above things and more - Representative Jim Miceli. He's been to all those meetings (and those he or his aide can't attend, he follows up on) he's been to the neighborhood, he's been to our homes to discuss the issues and he has been rock-solid in his support, always available to speak with about the issue, and fighting for the past three years to "finally clean up the Tewksbury dump." No, he's not ineffective because more has not yet been done. He as in fact brought us closer to getting substantial things done at the dump than any other comparable site in the state. Ask the people of Billerica and Tyngsboro how long they fought and waited (and are still waiting for action).

John Desforge, stay under the rock and you have been under for the past three years. We don't need another elected official who is not interested in the little people.

Judith M. Frittery

Dear Larz:

Seven and a half years ago, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen entered into a contract, known as the cable television license, with Greater Boston Cable Corporation, who later transferred the license to Continental Cablevision. The license will expire as of February 27, 1997.

For the purpose of negotiating a renewal license, the Federal Communications Commission defines the negotiation period, or "window" to begin 30-36 months before the current license expires. The Town of Wilmington's window "opened" as of February 27, 1994 which currently leaves two and a half years to complete negotiations.

The license between the Town of Wilmington and Continental Cablevision is quite extensive. The current license explains in detail: definitions; grant of license; system design; construction, installation and maintenance standards; line extension; services and programming; access commitments and policies; license fees; rates and charges; insurance and bonds; administration and regulation; liquidated damages license revocation; subscriber rights and consumer protection; reports and performance tests; employment; miscellaneous provisions; and schedules. As you can see, it will not be a simple task to complete negotiations in a quick manner.

What will be negotiated? All the items listed above. It's well worth your time to look at the items listed because if you live in Wilmington and subscribe to cable television, you may be affected.

During the past 10 years, technology has changed rapidly, and over the next 10 years, technology will change even quicker. Telephone companies are entering the cable television market, which will most likely mean new services and new technologies. Compressed signals will make for more channels and services. Computer networks and personal communications cations networks/services are becoming available, and distance learning is changing the educational system.

The bottom line to all of this, the community should receive service which would allow for growth. The Wilmington Board of Selectmen will be the spokespersons for the Town of Wilmington during negotiations. The selectmen should be seeking input from the community, not only from professionals, but from the subscriber level as well. After all, who benefits or suffers from the negotiations? The same citizens who voted for Wilmington's selectmen.

As a working professional in the video industry, I am aware how complicated the renewal process will be and how it will affect the Community Television, Inc. has served the Wilmington Community for the past seven years in many ways. Our services range from complying with our lease agreement with the Town by videotaping regularly scheduled selectmen and school committee meetings, and annual town meeting, but our services go beyond that. We have covered annual elections, taught activities at elementary and middle schools, taught video classes at Wilmington High School, helped acquire Massachusetts Corporation for Educational Telecommunications for Wilmington Public Schools, worked with an array of community organizations and town departments, and most recently helped the Town of Wilmington acquire an institutional network.

Access TV is mentioned in the current license, exactly three and a half pages of the some 100 page document. WCTV has some concerns which should be included in the negotiations to ensure that Wilmington's needs are met for the future, and the Town of Wilmington should be thinking about their future needs as well.

If the license is not completed by February 27, 1997, it is illegal for Continental Cablevision to operate in the Town of Wilmington. Therefore, cable television would not exist in the Town of Wilmington. This is a matter which will require a great amount of time to be completed in a thorough manner.

It is my understanding that the Wilmington Selectmen are currently reactivating the Cable Advisory Committee. It is time for you to let the selectmen and the Cable Advisory Committee know how you feel about cable television and what services should be provided for the future.

You can inquire what kind of services are available by talking to friends, relatives, and professionals, not only in this area, but outside of New England as well. If you truly want services, you will have to survey what is available.

For your own benefit, make certain that the Wilmington Community receives services utilizing the latest technologies, as it is the subscriber's dollars which pay for cable TV.

Sincerely,
Samuel L. Schauerman

Creative Beginnings

Six Emily Road, Tewksbury
(508) 658-5431

Through drawing and painting, Mary Jane Marcucci teaches her students to see things in ways they never have before. Why? Because she believes that by highlighting and enhancing an individual's self-expression, you strengthen not only their creative potential, but also their confidence. Once a student gains this confidence, it can be transferred to other life experiences.

Classes at Creative Beginnings are held outdoors whenever possible, to allow students to work from nature. Studio equipment is provided, however students must have their own drawing and painting materials. (Most supplies can be purchased through Creative Beginnings.) Mary Jane gives lessons to both children and adults, and finds it especially rewarding working with special needs students.

Art classes are held on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Periodic workshops are scheduled on Saturdays or Sundays, and are available to the general public. Classes are reasonably priced, and their limited size insures that all students get plenty of individual attention.

Mary Jane Marcucci works at her easel as her horses look on.

Wilmington Adult Education offers piano workshop

For the last 12 years thousands of people across the country have been catching on to an innovative new approach for playing popular music on the piano or keyboard. The One Day Piano Workshop developed by Robert Laughlin of Paradise, Calif, focuses on adults in our hectic society who have always wanted to play the piano just for the fun of it. (not for a Symphony Hall debut.)

The popular workshop unmasks the playing secrets and "tricks used by the Pros" that seem to have been kept from the average piano student.

Wilmington Adult Education will offer this workshop on October 3 at 6:30 p.m. Although some previous keyboard orientation is required, Michael Davis the instructor assures it will be profitable for those who have had just a few lessons as well as a more experienced individual.

Michael Davis, an approved workshop leader of the "Laughlin" method is a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music with over 20 years experience in private and classroom instruction. He describes himself as a "convert" to the popular music approach. "Being a classically trained pianist I dogmatically taught my adult students the note for note reading system without realizing that wasn't what they really wanted. I tested Laughlin's materials for a year on my private students and they started coming to their lessons smiling and saying things like Wow, I really had fun this week! I wasn't used to hearing that from them."

Davis incorporates lots of demonstrations into the class with time for answered questions in an effort to take the mystery out of playing piano.

Does he guarantee complete keyboard proficiency in just one night? Of course not. "Our emphasis is on maximum enjoyment - having fun playing now without weekly lessons." Students will take home a multi media packet that guides them along on their way at home without a big investment of time or money.

What kind of people take these workshops? "I get professionals, doctors, homemakers, seniors, near beginners to classically trained note readers. They all possess a desire for fun, a love of music, and a good sense of humor." Teaching this class is great, a real blast!"

Space is limited so those interested should enroll immediately by calling 658-7669.

Pension fund doing very well

The Middlesex County Retirement System pension fund return on assets almost doubled this past year, based on the 1993 investment report by Public Employee Retirement Administration. Middlesex County Treasurer, James E. Fahey, Jr., praised the strong performance of the pension fund, indicating that the return on investment grew from 7.25% in 1992 to 13.49% in 1993.

Treasurer Fahey acknowledged that the Bank of Ireland, the pension fund's international portfolio manager, led all other fund managers with a 57% return on investment.

In addition to the solid return from international investments, Fahey also stressed the importance of maintaining a well balanced, diversified asset allocation throughout the portfolio. According to the annual report of the Public Employee Retirement Administration, of the 107 public pension systems in the State, the Middlesex County Retirement System ranked 26 in asset returns; and over the past five years, has had an asset return of 11.51%, ranking them in the top 25% in performance of all public pension systems.

Middlesex County Retirement System Board Members, Lawrence Driscoll of Tewksbury, and Brian Curtin, Treasurer of the Town of Burlington, were pleased with the strong showing of returns and indicated that the equity portion of the portfolio was up 13.9%, or 3.9% higher than the S&P 500. Additionally, both Driscoll and Curtin pointed out that the Middlesex County Retirement System's assets grew by $38 million in the past year, and the fund, as of December 1993, has assets of $301 million, ranking it fifth largest pension fund in state.

Rep. Miceli announces pension reform

Representative James R. Miceli (D-Wilmington/Tewksbury) has announced the passage of legislation, of which he was the principal sponsor, which would allow the towns of Wilmington and Tewksbury to stabilize their funding of town employees' pension costs over the current amortization period.

"This legislation will provide an improved Middlesex County Retirement System while saving hundreds of thousands of dollars for towns like Wilmington and Tewksbury," commented Rep. Miceli.

These actions would provide savings for FY '95 of approximately $260,404 for Wilmington and $267,330 for Tewksbury. Collectively over the next five years, the new funding schedule will save $30 million for towns within the Middlesex County Retirement System. The new plan will also reduce the annual assessment used to cover pension costs within the town for the year.

Middlesex County Treasurer James E. Fahey, Jr. is very pleased with the passage of this legislation which he called "financially responsible." He also said that this legislation is expected to save the member towns and districts approximately $5.7 million in FY '95.

Work has begun on the new sidewalk on High Street in Wilmington. The Wilmington D.P.W. will be installing a five foot sidewalk with a three foot grass buffer on High Street and Wildwood Street. Here Frank Campillo and Mike Ferrera inspect the inside of a hydrant to be moved as Bob Frongillo and Kevin Burke inspect parts taken from the hydrant. This hydrant, as most, will be move back from the street. Phone poles will be moved in eight direction to accommodate the walkers. (photo by Erik Neilson)

Treasurer Fahey, along with elected board member Lawrence P. Driscoll of Tewksbury and appointed member Burlington Town Treasurer, Brian P. Curtin, also supported the passage of the legislation. It will provide the member communities with local saving and financial relief along with continued assurance to town employees and retirees of a solid pension fund.

effect on the town's growth. Through roads such as Route 38, 62, and 129 provided access to Lowell and Boston. Route 93 had a dramatic effect on residential development and industrial growth. The short commute to Boston made it attractive to both homeowners and businesses.

Historically, then Wilmington was attractive as a place to live for the following reasons:

Good soil, streams, access to commerce routes, recreation, highway access, short commutes.

Beginning in the late 1960s, pollution finally became an issue with the public. Like many communities, Wilmington has faced many environmental issues. Here are some of the ways the town has acted to protect our natural resources over the last 25 years.

We have two water treatment plants to filter all the drinking water to meet today's tough water quality standards. Also we have sanitary sewers in sensitive areas such as the Silver Lake neighborhood. Without these sewers, one of the oldest recreation areas would not be usable each summer. An aquifer protection bylaw is used to control activities in critical areas. An underground storage tank bylaw protects the groundwater from oil and gas. Land acquisitions by the Conservation Commission and the water department protect wetlands. Finally there are the stream cleanups by local groups.

If we were to start from scratch today and could lay out Wilmington the way we wanted, most of us would probably do some things differently. However, since we need to live with what we have, we should congratulate those who preceded us. They did a good job developing the town based on the concerns of the time. It is incumbent upon us to plan how we want the town to look environmentally 25 years from now.

settlers came to what we now call Wilmington, their primary objective was good soil for growing crops. Water bodies, such as streams, were also a priority. Pollution was not the concern then; rather, it was the amount of "falling water" for the grist and saw mills. Population centers or villages grew up around the farms and mills.

Access to commerce then became a concern. The construction of the Middlesex Canal, about 1800, provided a route to the Merrimack River in Lowell and to Boston.

The railroad soon replaced the canal for transporting goods and people. It lead to a real estate "boom" along the rail routes. For example, the Silver Lake area became a summer resort area. Subdivisions grew up around the lake in both Wilmington and Tewksbury. The recreation provided by Silver Lake made the area attractive. Years later, the large number of homes on 50 foot frontage lots would threaten the lake.

The automobile had a dramatic environmental notes

by George R. Allan
Recently, Money Magazine published its annual list of the best places to live in America (No. Boston wasn't rated Number 1). The survey uses over 40 criteria, which the readers rank in order of importance in determining where to live. Clean water was ranked the Number 2 concern this year after four years as Number 1. Clean air was Number 3 on this year's list. This indicates that environmental issues are major concerns when people determine the livability of an area.

The development and growth of towns in the past, however, did not give much thought to the environment. Witness the location of landfills of the 1950s and 1960s, which were built in areas of sand and gravel deposits. In many cases, these landfills were located over aquifers. The bulldozing and filling of swamps was also common throughout the country.

It is interesting to see how our priorities change with time. What was a concern years ago is no longer an issue. When the early

Wilmington senior topics

Commission meeting

The Commissioners meeting will be held in the function room of the senior center, 15 School St., Tuesday, Sept. 20. Lynn Duncan, Director of the Planning and Conservation for the town will be the guest of the commissioners.

At the July commissioners meeting, the topic of elder alternative housing was discussed. How to get some alternative type housing for seniors in Wilmington. That would be a condo development for senior citizens that could be purchased or rented when a senior finds it impossible to keep up a house and property. The commissioners felt by selling a house that is much too large for them, seniors should have, in Wilmington, alternative housing available to them. Lynn will tell what it would entail for them to pursue this task. Any senior interested should be at this meeting. The meetings have been re-scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. That will allow seniors to attend the meetings and get home at normal time.

Diabetes test
The nurse will be administering diabetes tests Thursday, Sept. 15. Those who have not had their sugar level checked in sometime should take advantage. Ann will be at the center Thursday starting at 1:30 p.m. Diabetes is an illness that can be present in the body without symptoms. The nurse can give a simple blood test that will detect it. If the test shows too much sugar in the blood, she will advise seeing a doctor. In most cases it can be controlled with diet. If not treated diabetes in advanced stage can cause disability, blindness and in some cases, death.

September dinner dance
Signups for the September 29 dinner dance are now in progress. The event will be held at Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall and there are still openings. It will include a chicken pie dinner with all the trimmings and music for dinner and dancing. A $3 non-refundable deposit will be required to help defray the cost of the evening social. Table numbers will be given.

Fair four weeks away
The Senior Fair is but four and a half weeks away. The committee is hoping to get a large number of mittens for all ages as they did last year. The number received last year filled the whole table and that pleased young mothers who loved the selections. With the extremely cold winter of last year, those mittens kept a lot of little hands warm. The committee will be most grateful to all those who help.

Other articles
Many other articles that have never been used or articles that one may be working on will be chance book money has not yet been turned in. Those who have a book or books, should attempt to drop off the stubs and money as soon as possible.

They are not selling too many books. If you could help them by taking at least one, that would make them happy. If they do not make the money they hope for the Christmas Open House therapeutic social will be in trouble, along with so many supplies needed for activity programs at the center and the July therapeutic luncheon social in the center.

The committee needs and will appreciate, all the help it can get.

Wilmington Sports Town Crier

Tough start for football team

by James Pote

This past week was torture for the Wilmington High School football team. On Monday afternoon, the team finally practiced together for the first time since the death of their friend and teammate Shane Warford.

Now they have to think about a football season. And this season, their first four games will be tough, to say the least.

The Wildcats are set to kick-off their 1994 season when they travel to Lawrence this Friday night (7:30) to take on the Central Catholic Red Raiders, who are coming off an upset loss to Billerica.

"We are up against the wind again," said head coach Gerry Sullivan, who is entering his second season.

"Last year we played everyone tough but we just couldn't get the win. This year we hope to do the same but maybe steal a few wins here and there."

After their bout with Central, Wilmington will then take on Chelmsford, Lowell and Billerica. That of course, is one of the toughest schedules in the state.

Despite their 2-8 record, last year's team graduated many quality players. Gone is the entire defensive line, their linebackers and their quarterback. That's a lot to fill in their final season in the Merrimack Valley Conference.

"All the kids need is some confidence. They want to prove to people that they can compete [in the MVC] given the chance. This is a good football team. They know they can play," added Sullivan.

This year's team will rely on mainly two weapons: new sophomore quarterback Billy Harrison and powerback Steve O'Neill, who ran for over 700 yards last year.

Harrison won the job over backup duo of brothers Richie and Timmy Gillis because of his athleticism. In other words, his blazing speed. Harrison will most likely be handing off to O'Neill despite the star running back being doubled teamed. Either that or he can turn to tailback Jay Iananchino, fullback Richie Gillis or tight end Brian Carroll. Harrison will definitely have his hands full come Friday.

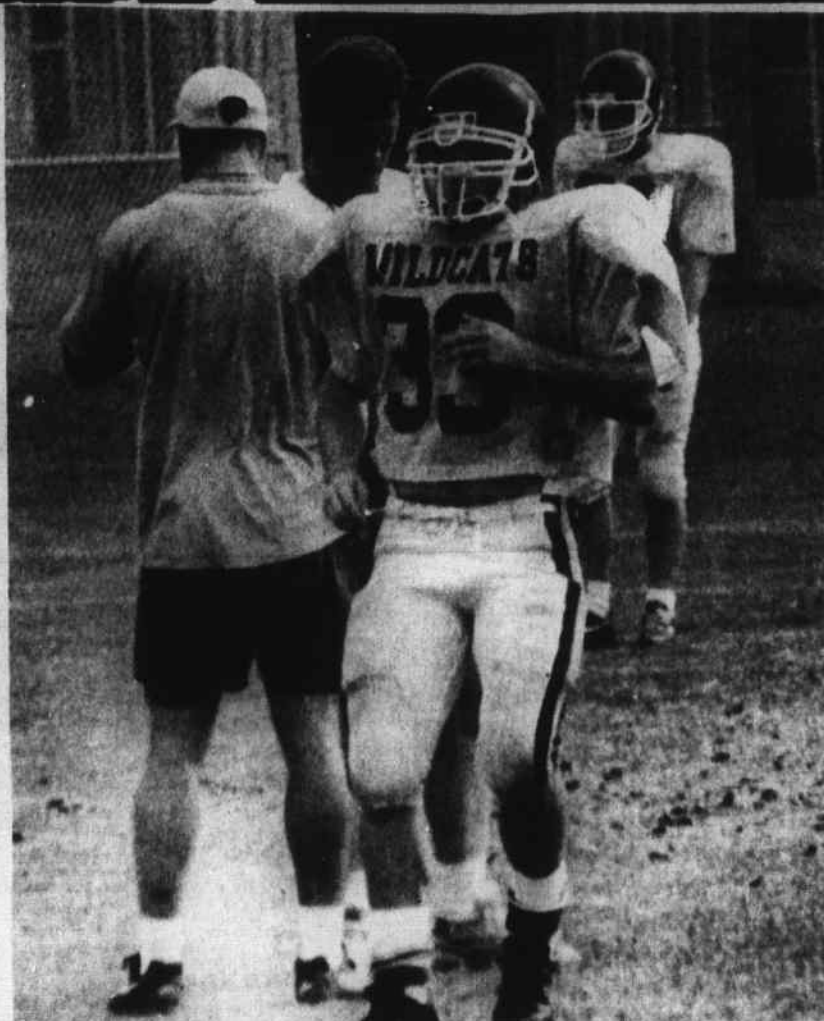

"Central should be very fired up considering it's their home opener and they lost last week. Right now we haven't been tested in a long while. The kids really want to play the game."

On the offensive line will be seniors Matt Keddie and Co-captain Jack Warford as the two tackles. Tom Burke and Dave Dipasquale will line up as the two guards.

With a solid mix of older players and younger players making up the 55-man roster, positive thoughts are looming for those impatient WHS fans.

With this season being the last for Wilmington in the MVC, there will be many memories being told throughout the year from many current and former players who battled hard for Wilmington.

All of those particular memories will be valuable to those who share them with their children and grandchildren some day. Needless to say, none of those memories will be more valuable than the memories of a close, departed friend.

Co-captain Steve O'Neill will be counted on heavily for the jist of the Wilmington Wildcat football offense in the upcoming season which opens this Friday night at Central Catholic.

WHS field hockey players are looking for another great season on the turf.

New throne successfully passed on

by James Pote

As the leaves on the trees turn to blazing autumnal colors, the Wilmington High School field hockey team will have a brilliant season. Starting with nine returning players from last year's squad (11 overall), this year's team reminds one of the recent NBA championship series: great defense.

Throughout the past few years this team has always had a fantastic goalie, who notches many shutouts and most of all many fantastic saves. First it was Gina Marinello. Then she passed her throne on to Kerri Gennetti. But, after Kerri's last game, the team was not sure who to pass her throne to - until a typical gym class took place.

At that time, former head coach Jan Cassidy Wood, still a gym teacher at WHS, was having her class play a game of "pillow polo." This is a game like field hockey but there are plastic sticks and a much bigger ball to play with. That is when Wood noticed the team's next all-star goalie: Kerry Anderson.

Anderson was an all-star in her first year of play when she helped the team go to state tournament play with their 8-5-3 record under Jan Urquhart, who started her first year as head coach after putting in 22 years as an assistant.

"Kerry is just fantastic. She's a great goaltender," said Urquhart.

Kerry is one of the eight returning seniors who will make up this year's team. Hopefully, there will be an improvement from last year.

"We are looking for a promising season. Chelmsford is a very aggressive and powerful team. Also, Haverhill, Lawrence and Tyngsboro all have strong teams. The girls know what they have to do to win," continued Urquhart.

A few more big reasons why Wilmington has such a great defensive team is the trio of senior captain Kathaleen Rooney, senior Jacqui Holloway and junior Leanne Harris.

In their opener on Monday afternoon in Chelmsford, they were without one of those three top-notch players as Leanne Harris was out sick. That was a devastating loss to the team, as they fell 7-0 to those powerful Lions.

"Kathaleen, Jacqui and Kerry all played outstanding. With Leanne out we had many girls in different positions which they were not used to. I can't say more about the girls tremendous effort. They faced a very good team."

In that 7-0 loss, Anderson came up with 27 saves, which in field hockey is a lot. Most of those saves, as usual, were big saves, which kept the girls a lot closer than what it would have been without her.

That particular opener for Wilmington is one they would like to forget. With Harris being absent and just four shots on net, the girls would like to turn that part of the game around when they face Andover and Tyngsboro on Wednesday and Friday.

"We should do alright. I saw a lot of positives and negatives in the game [against Chelmsford]. I liked a lot of what I saw, and we will work on the negatives."

Other returning seniors are forward/defense Michele Castorova, forwards Jane Carroll and Katie Moran as well as halfbacks Lori Volpe and Laurie Southmayd.

Tracy Reichel combines with Harris as the only two juniors on the team. Nicole Catazano, Paula DeCoursey, Julie Gillis, Deana Ward and Suzanne Williams are the sophomores with Catherine Townsend as the lone freshman.

Boys soccer fall inches away

by James Pote

Smacking the right post and missing a penalty kick by inches kept the Wilmington High School boys soccer team from winning their home opener against Dracut Monday, when the fell 1-0. Wilmington definitely had their chances to pull this one out.

"We are a much better team than they are. This is typical of a Wilmington team for the past five years. We have always had more talent than other teams. The other teams come to play, they hustle more and they beat us to the ball," WHS head coach Dick Scanlon fumed following the game.

In the first half of play, Wilmington indeed fell into that category. Dracut out-hustled and out-played them, scoring the lone goal of the game nine minutes into the half. After sophomore goalie Joe Bamberg came up with a great tip save in which the ball went right back out front, Joe Kane of Dracut headed the ball in for what would be the game winner.

"Joe [Bamberg] played great. We had defensive lapses that we did not have in the pre-season which resulted in the goal."

Wilmington had a great pre-season in which they beat Stoneham and Amesbury while tying Westford Academy in the battle of Scanlons. In that game, Dick Scanlon went head-to-head against his son Steve, who is the head coach for Westford Academy.

"We had a great pre-season. The kids hustled and looked really good. But, this is just one game and hopefully they can turn it around."

But, after their sub-par first half against Dracut, the team dominated in the second half but was unable to score. Andy Armata came inches away twice, just missing the inside post on a penalty shot and then nailing the right post on an indirect kick.

If the team would like to accomplish anything, this would be the year to do it. Right now the 21-man roster consists of 13 seniors.

Joining Armata as the veterans are Garrett Whitmore, Pat Cahill, Greg Peters, Mike Lacordia, Jeremy Antunuk, Dave Desantis, Fred Burke, Paul Heigham, Ryan Swasey, Wes Dunham, Steve Kosmedea and Paul Bruno. The team could have used the latter's defensive help at stopper during Monday's game, but he was suspended for one game after being involved in a fight with an Amesbury player.

Golf Tourney

An Open Golf Tournament will be held Tuesday, October 11 at Andover Country Club, Canterbury Street, Andover. Sponsored by the Alumni Association for Shawshen Tech, proceeds will be used for a scholarship fund for Shawshen graduates, student activities, and inter-school vocational excellence competition.

Golfer price for alumni and friends of Shawshen Tech is $100, which includes 18 holes of golf, a buffet luncheon, golf cart, tee prizes, a hole-in-one contest, and reception and dinner. The dinner is an Alumni Association banquet which may be purchased separately for $25.

Violence in high school sports, nah! - Couldn't happen. It only happens in baseball and basketball, right? Wrong! On Saturday, the Boys Varsity Soccer team hosted Amesbury in a non-league pre-season game. Wilmington's Paul Bruno retaliated after an Amesbury player bumped heads with him after a few heated words were exchanged. (Photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

Not a bad beginnning

First Inning

Last week marked the start of yet another season of youth hockey. For the past two seasons I have been an assistant coach for the Pee Wee B and the Squirt C Wilmington teams. This year I'm the head honcho for the Squirt C team with three friends and one parent helping out. It's lots of work - believe me.

Steve Pellerin then scored to make it 3-1 before North Andover netted two quick goals to tie it at 3. Then Tom Irwin scored his second of the game before Tim Rose lit the lamp to make it 5-5 at the end of two periods.

Two minutes into the final period, Irwin scored his third goal, giving him a hat trick. Four minutes later, Tom Doyle ended up scoring the

by James Pote

But anyways, the team had its first practice last Tuesday night. Then we had our first game on Wednesday night against North Andover at a cold Merrimack College rink.

What a fantastic game. Last year I was able to be the head guy when the head coach Scott Aldrich was unavailable. I was 3-1 when he wasn't there but I really didn't consider myself as the head coach. I was still an assistant. So this was really my first game as the head coach. And we won, 7-6 in a great back-and-forth dual. It felt great.

We were up 2-1 after the first period on goals by Matt Collins and Tom Irwin - a pretty comfortable lead. Yeah, right!

game-winner, set up by Rose and defenseman Steve O'Dea.

North Andover did score one goal to close it to 6-5 but Wilmington held onto the lead thanks to some great saves down the stretch by goalie Paul Sferrezza.

Overall, the team played great. Outstanding even. Mike Senarian, O'Dea and Eric Jacobs all played well on the defensive end. Gary Mounsey, Brian Gillespie and John Roman also took some solid shifts on the defensive side.

As for the forwards, Irwin, Rose and Collins all played exceptionally well. Chris Cappelz, Tom Anderson, TJ Duggan, Pellerin and Doyle also put in non-stop efforts to help pull out the win.

Can't wait for the next one.

Which enemy will finish on top?

by James Pote

Just the other day, I was rifling through some of my previous notes. Among them, I found a few notes of last year's Wilmington and Tewksbury football teams. I then remembered that I wrote an article comparing the two teams before the season started and I stated how I thought each team would finish, including the Thanksgiving Day game.

It's funny, but I was right with my early predictions. Last year I said that Wilmington would finish 2-8 and Tewksbury would finish 4-6 (My prediction for the Thanksgiving game was a little off - but who really can predict a score two months ahead?). Let's see if I predict the final records two years in a row.

Wilmington - This year's team lacks a lot, but they always find a way to battle hard and put up some fights against some big schools. They lost pretty much their whole defensive team. It will be interesting to see how sophomore Billy Harrison does at quarterback. With his speed, maybe the spectators will see many gutsy runs.

Steve O'Neill returns as one of two co-captains. Last year he ran for over 700 yards. Expect between 900-1000 this year. However, if he starts off real hot, many teams will double team him because he is Wilmington's only big offensive weapon.

As usual they don't have much depth at all. But the emergence of many underclassmen has the win column bouncing for joy for the next couple of seasons.

Prediction: 1-9 Their only win will come against Dracut, another team who will probably be vacating the MVC (don't forget that early call). However, they will have close battles with Andover, Methuen and Lawrence (the last one a non-league contest).

Tewksbury - I guess it could be considered cheating since they have already won their first game of the season.

Actually, to many, their win against Methuen was a big surprise, which means they could be a lot better than many people and teams think they are.

Mike Torode has emerged as the quarterback. When he was filling in for Chris Snow last year, Torode did an adequate job. Now, this year he has already jumped out to a solid start and he will progress as one of the top QB's in the league by the time he puts on his cap and gown.

Junior Ben Christopher put on all of the necessary moves he had to make on Saturday. Expect many more opportunities for the very talented athlete to make those moves. Alex Adorno and Dan Clark will provide a lot of fast action and hopefully will put up some big yards to help out Torode and Christopher.

Just like their neighbors to the south, Tewksbury lost most of its defense from last year. If the offense can put some big numbers on the board, maybe the defense can hold its ground as they did this past week. The result could be some big wins.

Prediction: 4-6. This early win is the key to the season. The real test will be after they take on Westford, Central Catholic and Andover. Expect wins from not only Methuen, but Andover, Dracut and Wilmington.

Thanksgiving prediction: Tewksbury will win their 32nd game against 18 defeats when they beat archrival Wilmington by a score of 26-14.

With Wilmington leaving for the Cape Ann League, this will hopefully not be the last game between these two great rivals.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?

by Edward H. Wilkens

FOR CAREER WOMEN

QUESTION: I am a career woman and make a very good income. Should I be concerned about insurance just like male executives?

ANSWER: As long as you are at risk, sex makes no difference. There is absolutely no sex discrimination when it comes to loss by fire, theft or personal injury. A loss is a loss is a loss. Any real property should be covered by homeowners or tenants insurance. Valuables should be covered for theft or damage. You should even consider umbrella coverage which, for a low amount, can cover your liability insurance well over your present limits for a small extra premium.

CAREER WOMEN on the rise have potential risks that should be covered by insurance.

Help serve the tennis teams

The 1994-95 school year has begun! The halls are full of our student body and the heart beat of enthusiasm and spirit for another school year has started.

I would like to introduce myself as the girls' tennis coach, for Wilmington High School. I taught, coached, and felt pride during the 93-94 season with the Wilmington girls' tennis team. Unfortunately, it doesn't look as though we will be seeing any girls in skirts or boys in shorts with racquets ready for the 94-95 season. I have been told that tennis has been cut, axed, - sorry - not enough money in the budget, and the town can't afford to keep this program going.

We have to cut something and tennis is it. Mr. Gillis, the Wilmington Athletic Director, has stated and he had to do this, but he feels "sorry for those kids." I understand the difficult decision he had to make, with pending pressures from the school committee and that "under the gun" decision had to be made. I feel "sorry" but I can't find it in my heart to forsake all of their past efforts and enthusiasms, shown to me last year.

What do athletics do for our youth? The presence of sports at the high school level is being challenged! Our tennis team learns more than just a good backhand or serve; it learns to acquire a sense of pride in accomplishment, community, self-achievement, school spirit and self-worth. It teaches them to have team spirit; to have the ability to work with others as a whole; to unite and to reach a common goal.

All of you parents raising teenagers at this point in time, know full well how difficult it is to keep your young adults busy, active and their minds on positive thoughts and actions. What message are we sending our kids when their youth programs are just cut away as though their efforts of previous years were all for nothing, not important enough to make the okayed sports list. Tennis now. What's next? Hockey: It's on the list.

Can we afford to keep these programs? My question to you is, how can we afford not to? I present to you a passionate plea for help and an alternative plan for our 94-95 tennis season.

Tennisthon

I will be running a Tennisthon which can be a successful fund raiser with your support. The girls' and boys' tennis team will be playing a number of tennis games with pledged money going back to them. Here is where the plea for help comes in. When any of our players ask neighbors, friends, relatives or local businesses to support their efforts, please be supportive and as generous as you can. I truly believe that any investment we make in our young, comes back to us two-fold in the years to come.

Thank you in advance,
Kathy Tarmey

Adult Hockey

by Donnie Ahern

Last year's first place Outlaws team of the Wilmington Adult Hockey League debuted their first round pick William "Bink" Wolfe who took the place of goaltender Bob Lanagan.

Wolfe and the Outlaws benefited with a 5-4 win over the Chiefs.

The new Blueliners team, surprised Captain John and his team Golden State by a spectacular come from behind 6-5 win.

It is still unsure whether or not Captain John's groin injury will benefit the team or handicap them.

The White team held off a third period attack of the Icehogs, but they still held on to a close 4-3 win.

Finally, Team Eight dominated the Red Team. Captain Joe McMann was unavailable for comment which is believed due to embarrassment.

A's repeat as champions

For the second year in a row, the Wilmington Little League's A's have repeated as town champs.

Manager Ron Grasso explains, "I think we all got caught up in the fine post season play of our boys and girls ball teams which have done the best in my memory as a coach, or resident of Wilmington. I didn't want this team to go unrecognized for the great season it had."

While this was going to be a rebuilding year, losing four all stars from last season's team, the boys rose to the challenge.

"I would attribute our success to a good defense in not throwing the ball around too much, and the offense, including the second part of the batting order coming through with timely hitting. The exciting part is we have nine boys returning for next season."

Tewksbury youth football highlights

Tewksbury Youth Football kicked off another great season with two Junior League and two In-Town League games. The action continued on Sunday as their newly formed Senior League faced off in two exciting contests.

In-town League Navajo 13 Apache 6

Jason DiPrimio burned up the field, scoring both Navajo touchdowns (23 yards and 20 yards). Danny Elliman added the extra point. Andrew Rodgers and Derek Bent led the charge with solid blocking.

A two yard touchdown run by John Harrison put the Apache on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter. Apache Carl Gianelli kept the excitement running high when he recovered a fumble late in the fourth. Steve Kasprzak and Adam Stotik directed the Apache offense with skillful runs.

Nickerson caught a Jason Wagstaff pass, running 14 yards into the end zone for the first Sioux touchdown. Duran McNeil had a 55 yard touchdown reception and Wagstaff scored on a 19 yard run.

Jack Byrne capped off the Sioux scoring, charging into the end zone from the seven yard line. Jordan Frasca and Bill Surran anchored the defense.

Junior League Cherokee 7 Sioux 6

Patrick Gorman on a sweep right ran 50 yards for the first touchdown of the season for the Sioux. Dan Wandell aided on the play. John Sarsfield and J.W. Kitchell sparked the Sioux defense, but the Cherokee persevered and held on for the win.

Apache 26 Navajo 13

Matt Spatola fired the Apache offense, scoring two touchdowns. Matt Davis and Jeff Macinanti both aided the cause, each scoring a touchdown and extra point.

Quarterback Mark Staniech was another crowd pleaser, throwing one touchdown pass and extra point. Dave Fogaren made eight unassisted tackles.

Navajo Jim Hamilton scored two touchdowns with help from George Carusone and Bill Mulvanity. Jack Phelps and Nick Cioffi played outstanding defense for the Navajo.

Senior League

Cowboys 13 Giants 6

Cowboy Sean Tiberio hammered the Giant defense, breaking through first with a 14 yard run off tackle, then with a six yard dive. Mark Morris ran a two yard slant scoring the extra point behind the impressive blocking of Steve Mitchell and Dave Harrington.

Jim Goglia, with help from Kevin Murray and Dave Harrington, stymied the Giant offense. The only Giant highlight came when Alex Quinn flew down the sideline scoring a TD on a 50 yard kickoff return.

Raiders 32 Chiefs 6

Raiders dominated the offense with touchdown runs by Tom Sullivan, Dan Brennan and Joe Salvaggio, while Matt Oulette and Neil Madden provided outstanding blocking. Mike Deshler and Brian Fitzpatrick were strong on defense for the Raiders.

Sean Penney and the Chiefs moved the ball well throughout the game, but were unable to score until the fourth quarter, when Brad Columbus caught a 20 yard pass from Brian Canty.

Cheerleader for the week

TMHS field hockey loses a close one

by James Pote

With a new substitute rule this year that field hockey players have to change on the fly, like in ice hockey, the TMHS girls suffered through a long and tiring game. With only two substitutes, most of the field hockey squad ran and ran throughout the whole game, becoming very tired in the process. They still managed to lose a very close and exciting game to Dracut 2-1, to open their season on Monday afternoon.

"The girls played very tough. They hustled and I was pleased with the effort. I just wished we had won," said head coach Mary Sullivan, who is in her second year.

Leading the team are the two captains, Megan Conlon and Diana Day, who both played exceptionally well on defense.

Another big puzzle to the defense is the goalie position, where Nikki LeCurer takes over. Nikki played solidly, making seven saves against the Middies.

"I'm not going to say how we are going to do because last year I thought we would do well and we just won two games," joked Sullivan.

"But I do think we have a strong team but we are in a very tough league with Wilmington, Chelmsford, Tyngsboro and Lawrence. It will be tough."

With ten seniors on the team and just a few underclassmen, this will more or less be a do or die season for the girls.

Sarah Keane scored the lone goal on Monday but she will team up with forwards Mary and Martha Eaton (twins), who just transferred from Methuen. Julie Abruzzi, Kim Battano, Alyssa Dagel and Jessica Alberti will all be going through their last season at TMHS.

Recreational activities

Those looking for a recreational and competitive challenge in athletics, are urged to check out the Tewksbury Public School's Community Education Program. The fall semester course schedule includes a men's basketball league, a women's basketball league and an indoor soccer league.

There is also golf and volleyball for interested beginners. A total body fitness program can also be experienced for both beginners and advanced in aerobics.

The fall semester begins the week of September 26 and runs through the week of December 7. Brochures are available at offices of each public school in town. For more information call 508-640-9658.

New fast pitch team

Lightning hit the Merrimack Valley this summer in the form of a newly organized girls fast pitch softball team.

The team was formed to give better than average softball players ages 11-12, an opportunity to play at a very competitive level. The team, made up of girls from Tewksbury, Billerica, Chelmsford and Dracut posted a 46-14 record. They finished in the top three of the majority of tournaments they entered. Local residents of this year's successful team include: Sarah Mochrie, Lindsey Miller, Camille McNeil and Jean Connolly.

Next season will include a 14 and under division as well as 12 and under. There will be tryouts for both teams, for the 1995 season September 24 at Lampson Field in Billerica at 1 p.m. For more information contact Sue Mochrie at 851-5321.

Hulkamaniacs vs Bushwackers

Joey Mayo, Michael Damplo, Daniel Reed, Louis Insalaco and John Dipaolo played fast field soccer.

Huskies vs Hurricanes

The powerful offense of Matthew Stewart and Robbie Riccio, the super hustle of Dan Farrell and the scoring of Robbie Gillis led the Huskies' attack. Christopher Pedi and Sean Burns defended with style and determination.

Charles Broussard and Josh Courtney tended net for the Hurricanes, with Russell Grant, Jeff Courtney, Eric DeFava and Michael Decaduto handling the field play. Bobby Sinopoli and Justin LeFave booted in goals for the Hurricanes.

Superb defense by Vikings Nick Eaton and Greg Phillips, and accurate passing by Michael Bell kept pressure on the Buccaneers for most of the game. Stephen Crawford and John Cuoco each scored for the Vikings.

The Buccaneers responded with a great team game, led by the efforts of Devin Boyle and Phil O'Brien. Daniel Travis put the Buccaneers on the scoreboard.

Raiders vs 49ers

A few of the Wilmington field hockey players are paying attention at practice while some others care not to. The girls opened their season against Chelmsford on Monday afternoon when they were defeated by a score of 7-0.

Lakers vs Trailblazers

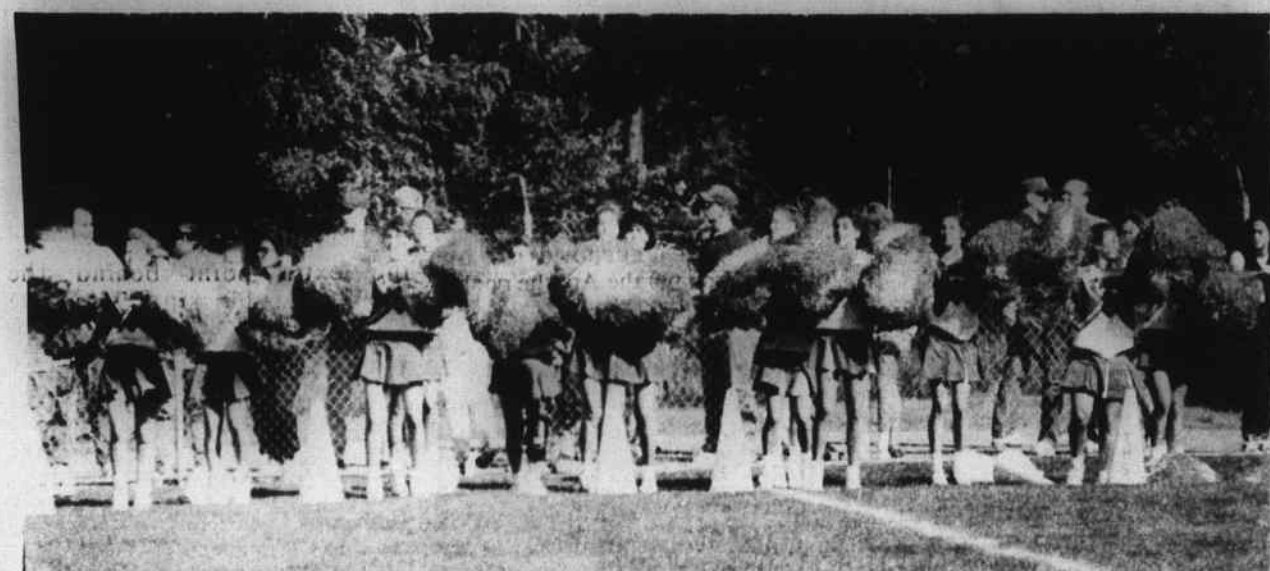

In a game filled with constant up and down field action, Lakers Kelly Arsenault and Jason Hassey got past the opposing defense and each booted in a goal. Extraordinary goaltending skills were shown by Matthew Marchese and Christopher Ramsdel.

Ed Hayward rode 192 miles on his bike to help support the Jimmy Fund and the Dana Farber Institute.

NOVENA to ST. JUDE

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us, and St. Jude, the worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us.

Say this prayer nine times a day, by the 8th day your prayer will have been answered. This prayer has never been known to fail. Publication promised. My prayers have been answered.

K.A.S.

Biker goes distance

As a bike-a-thon participant of the Pan Massachusetts Challenge, Ed Hayward, CEO and President of Advanced Print Management, Inc. of Wilmington, pedaled 192 miles from Sturbridge to Provincetown in just two days to earn over $5,000 in support of the Jimmy Fund and the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

Ed received donations from family, friends, employees, business associates, and the local community. By networking through drum and bugle Corps. Newsletters, he has also received donations from people all over the country who do not know him, but simply "caught the spirit" of commitment to help those with cancer.

Advanced Print Management, Inc. also generously supported Ed's efforts because the cause of cancer research and treatment lies at the top of the corporate list for donations. Ed lost his sister to the dreaded disease in April of this year, and Vice President Tony Panaggio lost his mother to cancer in 1990.

When asked what sort of experience this has been, Ed answered, "Great! I'm ready to do it again next year."

Local Karate clinic helps to benefit others

Self discipline, confidence, respect, positive attitudes and self esteem. Those are just a few of the qualities the students at Todd Keane's Academy of Traditional Karate exemplify.

Recently, the students demonstrated their goodwill toward others as they participated in the first annual "Break-a-Thon" to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

More than 40 students participated in the event, held at the studio's 155 West Street, Wilmington location, raising more than $2000 to fight muscle disease. Students signed up sponsors to donate a certain amount of money for the wood that they would break using the special martial arts techniques that they have learned from instructors at the Academy of Traditional karate in Wilmington.

Jim Goddard of North Reading raised nearly $400 and was the grand prize winner, receiving a special gift certificate for his outstanding efforts.

Students at the Academy of Traditional Karate have been supporting and participating in the MDA's kick-a-thon and break-a-thon programs for years. Head instructor, Todd Keane believes the MDA break-a-thon program is a great way for his students to use their healthy muscles in an effort to help those whose muscles are not as healthy. Funds raised from this break-a-thon will enable MDA to continue its extensive research and patient service programs covering 40 neuromuscular diseases.

The MDA sponsors 500 individual research projects world wide as well as research centers here in New England. MDA also supports some 240 hospital affiliated clinics nation wide, where people with any of the 40 disorders covered by the MDA programs receive medical care and related services.

Special thanks to event coordinator and managing director Todd Keane for organizing the break-a-thon, all the students at the Academy of Traditional Karate who participated in the break-a-thon and their families and friends who supported this worthwhile event.

The best line of defense - eight legged style

by Bill Conlon

I've learned, in my long journey, that beauty comes in many forms, but one of the forms I now admire has people looking at me funny. (As if they didn't before.)

I've learned to like spiders. Oh, I used to hate spiders, and kill them on sight. I was convinced that a .45 wasn't enough for the biggest, hairiest spiders, and if a tarantula came climbing up that side of the desk, I'd be headed out that door, right there, bearing 180 degrees true from the critter. No door? No problem. I'll make one.

Those days are past. A spider in the house still earns an instant death sentence as an uninvited guest, and a spider on my person gets the same treatment, but spiders outdoors are simply too valuable and interesting to destroy. Why spiders make our skin crawl, but six-legged insects don't, mystifies me.

Without spiders, we'd be armpit-deep in flies and bugs. They're our first and best line of defense against bugs, and the alternative is living in a pool of chemical insecticides. And to meet their mission of devouring every possible insect, spiders have evolved into countless variations.

Spiders come in two basic types -- web spinners and hunters -- but all share certain features. All spiders spin web strands, from "spinneret" glands in their abdomens, and all have venomous bites and eight eyes and legs. If it doesn't have eight legs, it's not a spider, period. Team Lab Coat is still trying to duplicate the unique qualities of spider web, which is stronger than steel for its diameter and far more stretchable. For years, spider web was used to make crosshairs in telescopic rifle sights. True fact. Also, the "Dante" ground-exploring robot probe gets around on multiple legs instead of tracks or wheels, which is another nod to spiders.

Hunting spiders roam, and hunt on the prowl. They may show up anywhere, any time, making them the most likely intruders inside the house or car. Hunters range from tiny jumping spiders to huge, hairy tarantulas. The largest spiders I've ever encountered in New England are hunters, often called Fishing or Fisher spiders. These hairy hikers are always found near water, most often in pairs, and they are quick as lightning. Zip! Gone!

Another type of hunter forms its web into a throwing net, then drops it on unsuspecting passersby below. Yet another hunter is the Harvester spider, also called the Daddy Long-Legs. (P.S. if Harvesters carried bigger fangs, we'd all be in trouble. Their venom is supposed to be the most potent around.)

Web spiders, on the other hand, stick close to home. Once they build a web they prefer to stay there, if the food supply remains steady. Spider webs come in a wide variety of shapes, from classic concentric "nets" to the flat "blanket" style and beyond. Well beyond, at times.

A big, yellow-and-black "Garden Spider" spun her web in a corner of my mother's garden this summer, and I made it clear that nobody was to molest her. I can't say how many garden pests met their grisly (yet chemical-free) end in her web, but the heap of empty insect husks on a leaf below stood as quiet testimony to her labors. Thank you, dear.

Blanket spiders, also common in this area, build funnel-shaped webs with a side pocket, where the spider can wait, safely out of sight, feeling for the wiggling strands.

Out west, I found that loose, free-form webs, the kind that look like a jumble of lines strung without any apparent logic, were not good for your health. Those loose webs are spun by "comb-foot" spiders such as the Black Widow. I've never had to endure a bite, but I did see some huge Black Widows in the desert, with abdomens the size of a dime. One of them I found while I was running my hand along a wall and got a sudden urge to look under the edge, and found a huge Widow just inches from my fingers. Ohhh.

I've never seen a Black Widow in New England, but I've heard they do exist here. More to fear around here is the Brown Recluse, noted by a violin-shaped mark on the back. Still, Brown Recluse spiders aren't common, and lightning is more to worry about than a spider bite.

There are Trapdoor Spiders that live in underground tunnels with a tiny cap overhead; there are spiders that live underwater, carrying air in a bubble on their abdomens; and there are spiders so small you can barely see them. Amazing.

In my garden, spiders of all sizes are welcome guests and invaluable allies. I'll shoo a spider out of the way in the garden, rather than step on it.

Well, if we hadn't had any rain for a long time, maybe I'd sacrifice a spider, but otherwise ... no.

Too many legs

Mass. Audubon Society's Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield is offering a workshop for children ages eight to 10 on insect relatives on Sat., Oct. 8 from 1 to 3 p.m. Not all creepy crawlies are insects, but it's easy to tell just by counting legs (if it has more than six, insect not!). In this activity-oriented program, children will explore the world of insect relatives such as spiders, daddy longlegs, centipedes, millipedes, and pillbugs.

Well also track down and observe these creatures in their habitat to see how they live in the wild. Pre-registration required. Fee, $8 ($6 Mass. Audubon members). For more information call the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary at 508-887-9264.

"Bug me, please!"

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

- 1) "It's something to do."
- 2) "It's not crowded."
- 3) "It's pleasant."

All the above reflect Reading High biology teacher Leo Kenney's reasons for hanging out with four-toed salamanders, fairy shrimp and flocks of students - hands-on, hip-deep, in slimy sloshes from Burlington to Reading to myriad other local mudholes.

"Most everybody who goes out into the wetlands and sees salamanders gets pretty excited," he says.

He's so excited he's turned "wetlands" and "vernal pools" into 1) "Wicked Big Puddles," a popular field and laboratory guide and 2) the "Vernal Pool Association," an environmental group gushing with enthusiasm.

His student disciples are so excited three of them dressed as salamanders for Earth Day on the Esplanade, and all of them are selling T-shirts in a wildly successful slime-time, school-business venture.

Various national and state organizations are so excited they're showering him with honors, awards and grants involving money, computers and networking. He's mired in paperwork - and admired by many.

Last year alone, Kenney received the New England Environmental Educator Association Environmental Teacher of the Year Award, the Massachusetts Audubon Society Conservation Teacher of the Year Award, the Massachusetts Association of Conservation Commissions Environmental Service Award, a Busch Gardens Pledge and Promise Environmental Award - in nationally televised ceremonies, and an Environmental Protection Agency grant for $5,000 - his second such.

Equally at home networking with computers or butterflies, in a world both mud-luscious and puddle-wonderful, Leo Kenney is an oxymoron: master of one-liners, detailed scientific analyses, and puns perfectly suited to both; philosopher and scientist; humorist; scholar.

Laid-back in high gear, organized in scattergories.

Subtle to the max.

One entire upper wall of his classroom - "what would otherwise be dead space" - is decorated with bumper stickers. Safe science begins in his lab with the following poster: "Caution with fire. Don't make an ash of yourself."

When he's not at his favorite watering hole or in "his" high school - high class vivarium, he's on the Internet as the Environet expert. He wears T-shirts with messages every day ... during summer school. "I have my own dress code," says Kenney, a survivor of 24 years at Reading High. He doesn't talk, all the time, about the Grateful Dead.

His students' fascination with schools and pools can only be explained as the lionization of Leo, perhaps for his magnetic powers: of persuasion and performance. To the student hesitantly inquiring again about "the insect collection," a major fall project, he says, "Bug me, please."

"THAT'S THE ONLY TIME I've had a half-page picture in the 'Globe,'" says Leo Kenney, pointing to a photo of someone who looks like his twin but is labeled Dennis McNamara. "That was one of my better ones. But look - they misspelled my name. I never called them. It didn't make any difference to me. I knew who I was." Actually "they" got his name completely wrong - even though he's won several national and state environmental awards. If you didn't catch Kenney on television during the Busch Gardens Pledge and Promise Award ceremony in May, you can probably catch him almost anywhere in the Middlesex East area - anywhere which offers turtles, snakes, or the opportunity for a hands-in, hip-deep, slimy experience. Kenney teaches biology at Reading High.

I remember when Janet Mugford, the head teller at a bank, asked me why I carry a small mirror in my bank book. "Oh!" I explained, "That's in case a teller wants me to identify myself." ...A man who was in the next window wearing a cowboy hat and boots was told by Joan Burke, "I'm sorry, Tex, but your wife has beaten you to the 'Draw'."

I am firmly convinced that most class reunions are held to see what former classmates are falling apart. I attended my high school class reunion last year and I was very disturbed to see that many of them had gotten so old, bald and forgetful that they didn't even recognize me.

Maurice Parsons was putting a sign in the window that said, "Maurice Parsons, CPA." "You are not an accountant," I told him. "It takes years of study and requires passing a stringent examination to earn the right to have those letters after your name." Maurice smiled and

Winchester gears up for 'earth machines'

An agreement with the state would allow Winchester residents to purchase home composting units at the bid price of $34 per - a "good deal for the town," according to Winchester Director of Health Joe Tabbi.

The cost of each one-cubic-yard, heavy-grade, black recycled plastic "earth machine" represents a savings of more than half the regular retail price, according to the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

Its down-to-earth design allows for an extremely quick breakdown of solids so that it does not become a home for unwanted rodents, according to Tabbi.

The classes are open to interested Wakefield residents above the age of 18; and the topics include domestic violence, traffic laws, check and credit card fraud, and personal and home security.

Classes will be held Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at The Savings Bank on Main Street. According to the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," until budget matters are worked out, police officers will volunteer and work "on an off-time" basis.

Applications to the Citizens Police Academy must be in to Lieutenant Robert Thistle no later than September 15th.

Kenney's fascination with pools can easily be explained: he is, after all, a biology teacher, a life scientist.

Vernal pools, he explains, are "temporary wetlands that support certain types of wildlife. Temporary generally means free of fish. In Massachusetts, the Wetlands Protection Act has defined vernal pools so the pool and habitat can be protected, particularly the habitat. The definition in Massachusetts depends on certain types of wildlife." Vernal pools are: "contained basin depressions with water, therefore pools. They have breeding evidence of moles, salamanders, wood frogs or fairy shrimp. They are the only type of wetland defined by animal life as opposed to plant life.

"Their importance," he continues, "is they're the only place these animals breed. Without vernal pools these animals - plus lots of others that use them - would have no place to live ... and would die. The animals that use these have historically evolved to live in this kind of wetland. They've been overlooked for years by the general public."

And that's where he and his sidekicks, happy as clams, ooze upon the scene as smoothly as ... as ... fish in water. The one-of-a-kind Vernal Pool Association - a Kenney-kid, grass roots, ground swell creation - could be the next big splash heard round the ... well.

"The salamanders that use vernal pools are large - up to six or seven inches in size - and spend most of their lives underground," he says. "The only time they're generally seen by the public is the few nights a year they go to pools to lay their eggs. If you live in this area, you probably have them in your backyard - but never see them."

"We've made an effort at public awareness, letting people know these things exist because most people find this kind of wildlife interesting and just don't realize it's there. By making them aware, they're more apt to appreciate it."

The association hatched naturally at Reading High with the usual unusual Kenney style: laissez-faire with flair. "We call it 'the Vernal Pool Association,'" he says, "leaving room, I guess, for future expansion to cover the world."

"We've been doing vernal pool studies for at least 15 or more years as part of the field biology class. It's just been one of my interests, that kind of animal and wetland. Probably five years ago, we started to intensify what we were doing and two years ago, ended up forming the association so as the kids put it 'we could share all this fun with other people'."

"A core group of about five or six of us ate lunch together each day, and one day, we said, 'Let's start a club.' Within a couple of months we had an EPA grant, and we were on the map. It was pretty quick acceleration. Right now the numbers fluctuate. It's been a loose amalgamation of people."

"The way I run a club is there's no real sign-up. It's just you show up and you do some work. Membership is equated with doing something so there are probably about 15 people doing something at one time or another."

"It's never entirely clear why people get involved," he continues. "Usually, it's just a matter of in class or after class, I'll just be doing part of it and say, 'Here, we're putting this together. Why don't you do it for a while?' And some of them say it's fun and I say, 'Good. Come by again.'"

"Or," he adds, "how about 'my enthusiasm helps'?" All the qualities above translate handily into Kenney, the consummate professional and teacher.

"Could we pretend to do something useful or something so it looks like I'm actually directing the class?" he asks a roomful of students who, for the most part, are seriously engaged in a host of biological functions. "Fine. Never mind. As you were."

"This is an excellent group of kids," he says, not to the class. "A lot of them are involved in a lot of this but not necessarily everything every day. They're expecting a quiz to be coming on. That's why there's a modicum of study. They're not without their intelligence."

And then, he addresses the students: "While we're having this little break here, are there any questions that have jumped into your mind? What happens to the nuclei or to the tube cell itself? The tube cell nuclei remains within the tube cell and then the whole tube cell and pollen grain, whatever is left, simply just deteriorates. It's a non-needed structure. The tube cell nucleus is the nucleus for the tube cell. That's a living cell and then the sperm nuclei go out through the end of it into the ovule and at that point, the old sperm tube and everything is useless so it just goes away."

He doesn't know if most kids in the Vernal Pool Association - or for that matter, his honors classes - will continue in biology. "It seems likely they will," he says. "They all seem to be scientifically interested or have that aptitude. It's also just fun - a lot of them get started 'cause it's fun."

"And then they find out it's science."

replied, "Chipper, I am duly qualified to have those letters after my name. I'm an expert at 'cleaning, pressing and 'alterations'."

Please don't ever ask for "One for the road." You may get a state trooper for a chaser!... When my cousin, Mark Aloisi, was about five years old, I said to him, "Mark, I have these two coins in my hand. Pick one and keep it." I was surprised that he picked the smaller coin, the quarter, and didn't chose the larger silver dollar (then known as a cartwheel). I repeated it many times at the lawn party and to everyone's surprise, he always picked the quarter. His grandfather called Mark aside and said, "Mark, don't you know that the large coin, is worth four times more than the quarter you have been picking?" Mark smiled and said, "I know that, but so far I have $12.50 worth of Woodchipper's money."

When I asked Ed Horrocks (a painting contractor) for a job he asked me, "Chipper, can you paint with a 40-foot ladder?" "Nope," I replied, "I usually use a brush, spray gun or roller." Ed gave me an irritated look and exclaimed, "Chipper, I need a painter, not a comedian."... I think the local fence company employees are on strike. I rode by this morning and I saw "pick-ets" all around the place. I'll keep you "posted," Folks.

Ruth O'Leary called the fire department saying, "I want to report a fire." "Okay, lady," the dispatcher said, "How do we get there?" "Good grief," Ruth replied, "don't you have those big red fire trucks anymore?"... The judge asked Mario DiMaino, "Have you ever been in this court before?" "Yes, your honor, I have." "In what suit?" "I think it was my light brown one, sir."

I remember that I didn't learn anything in the first grade of school. My teacher was so fat, every time she turned around she erased the blackboard... My Aunt Nora asked the deli manager, "Are you sure this cheese was imported? It smells like it was deported."

Folks, business can be slow for professionals. A lawyer gave me his card and said, "Chipper, if you need my legal services, call this number. It's my uncle Danny's candy store; he'll give me the message."... I said to Kathy, "A girdle to you is an accessory after the fact."... A camel is really a horse put together by a congressional committee.

Wayne Higden of Burlington told his lovely wife Diane, "I think I'll go out and water the lawn." Diane looked out the window and exclaimed, "But it's raining dear." "That's okay," Wayne replied, "I'll take an umbrella out with me."

I remember my Aunt Nora shouting to her son, "Get up John, or you'll be late for school." "I'm not going to school," John shouted back to his mother. Aunt Nora climbed up the stairs and exclaimed, "Give me two reasons why you're not going to school." "The teachers hate me and all the kids hate me, too! You give me two reasons why I should go to school," "Well," Aunt Nora replied, "you're 39 years old and you're the principal!"

How many men does it take to change a lightbulb at the Woburn Elks? Four - Robert Burns to hold the bulb and Jimmy Quinno, Don Harris and John Lampher to turn the stepladder.... Richie Hamel wanted to be considered for a part in a play. The director asked Richie, "Have you ever been on the stage?" "No," Richie replied, "but I've had my leg in a cast once."

George Gould just told me that I must get royalties from the aspirin companies because readers of Woodchips must need them after reading some of the jokes, puns and quips in this column. Well, Paul Harvey must think some of them are good enough to be mentioned nation wide on his "Paul Harvey and the News."

Louis B. Mayer, the Hollywood Motion Pictures producer, started in Chelsea in his family's junk business. You could say, Mr. Mayer went, like Horatio Alger, from "rags to riches." His partner, Sam Goldwyn, was also known for his wonderful so called Goldwynisms like "A verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on," "Don't talk while I'm interrupting you;" and "Was that you who drowned last year or was it your brother?"

When a horse that Jimmy Durante bet on lost in a photo finish, retired great jockey Bob DiStasio said "Jimmy, what that horse needed to win was a jockey like me." Jimmy smiled and said, "What that horse really needed was a 'nose' like mine!"

School Notes by Phyllis Nissen

McGrath is Tewksbury goaltender

The superintendent sends a message

The staff and administration have been working hard throughout the summer to prepare for a productive and rewarding school year, notes the superintendent.

And these are their goals, in Tewksbury, as described by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Christine L. McGrath.

"The Tewksbury School Committee and the administrative team have drafted a set of systemwide goals for the 1994-95 school year," she notes, in the Tewksbury edition of the "Town Crier."

The goals represent the third year of a five-year plan, spanning the following key areas: curriculum and instruction, community involvement and school organization.

"We will implement the new elementary reading program," she continues, beginning with curriculum and instruction.

"This program has a strong emphasis on literature and will strengthen the development of critical reading skills and reading comprehension. New science programs will be piloted at the K-12 levels. Faculty members have received training at the University of Massachusetts-Lowell, the Massachusetts Department of Education and Smith College in support of this work. A new elementary and health curriculum will be implemented. This program is funded through a state grant and will increase children's knowledge about how the body works.

"A special emphasis across the curriculum this year will be on the development of higher order thinking skills. Faculty and administration at Tewksbury Memorial High School are developing a plan for alternatives to the general track. A year long plan for teacher training in the area of teaching critical and creative thinking skills has been developed to support the faculty in this effort.

"The Tewksbury Public Schools continue to expand and upgrade the technology education program. The Mac comput-

Minuteman Esthetics course

Minuteman Tech in Lexington is now accepting registrations for its 300 hour evening Esthetics Licensing Program for adults.

Participating students will prepare for the Massachusetts licensing exam for Esthetics.

The class will meet from 5:45 to 10 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays, from September 20 through June 20.

The course will consist of Esthetics theory and science and the practical application of esthetics in a clinic setting.

Topics will include: basic anatomy and physiology of the skin; facial treatments; waxing, massage, exfoliation and make-up/cosmetics.

Further information is available from Minuteman's Community Education Office, which may be reached at (617) 861-7150. Telephone registration is available with selected credit cards.

er lab at Tewksbury Memorial High has been expanded. A second Mac lab has been installed in the High School library making computers available to all students and faculty during every period of the school day. A second Mac lab has been installed at the John W. Wynn Middle School. This lab will be available to all classes to support the use of technology in completing class assignments. Four more Mac computers have been added to each elementary school and the Apple IIe computers have been shifted from the Middle School to the elementary schools to develop children's keyboarding skills. Grade level standards for technology have been established to guide the elementary faculty in computer instruction at each grade level.

"A Spanish curriculum has been added to the Middle School program. Each child will now have a French and a Spanish course during their middle school years.

"A job training-internship program has been implemented at Tewksbury Memorial High School with an expanded number of job placement sites available for interested students."

The high school and middle school will focus on community involvement by expanding the parent and student orientation program for eighth grade students about to enter the high school. Other initiatives include the hosting of a college fair in April 1995, a career fair and a Scholastic Aptitude Test training program aired to the community via cable television.

School organization will take place through three key projects. "The first," notes McGrath, "includes the study of the short term and long term building needs for the Tewksbury Public Schools. The continued increase in the kindergarten enrollment has triggered the need to look closely at our needs in this area before we are faced with overcrowding in our schools.

"The second project," she continues, "involves the field testing of a new teacher evaluation tool. This tool represents a commitment to a more rigorous model of supervision and evaluation through goal setting, the use of clinical observation and an increased number of meetings between the administrator and the faculty member.

"The third project centers around the Tewksbury Memorial High School preparation for the accreditation visit by the New England Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges in March 1995. Extensive self-evaluation and committee work has been completed and will continue to be the focus of our work throughout the year."

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information, to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

Creative Arts fall season offers many programs

Register by September 26th for fall music and art for children, teens and adults at Creative Arts in Reading. Classes begin the week of October 3rd with many exciting additions to both the music and art schools.

Bring the family and meet new faculty members, try out Dalcroze Eurhythmics, visit the Instrument Petting Zoo and the Art Room at the Fall Open House on September 17th from 2 to 4 p.m.

Dalcroze Eurhythmics/Music, Movement, Imagination demonstrations will be at 2 p.m. from 2:30 p.m. for 3-4 year olds; 2:30 p.m. for 3-4 year olds; and 3 p.m. for 5-6 year olds. Call (617) 942-0538 for more information or to receive a brochure.

Creative Arts welcomes many new faculty this fall in both music and art. In the Art School, Betul Arin and Kerry Gorton will teach "Clay Kids" and "ClayWorks." Kerry is also an instructor for "Art Basics," and local artist Sheila Foley offers "Cartoon Club" for grades 3-5 at the Eaton School and grades 6-8 at Parker Middle School, and "Nature Kids" for grades K-2.

"Teen Art Studio" for ages 13-16 will be taught by Cathy Gruetzke on Thursdays for 7-9 p.m. and Janis Lavine looks forward to "Art Start," "Art Kids," and "Art Builders." All new art faculty are experienced teachers with degrees in art who bring creativity and enthusiasm to the fall semester.

Adult art for the fall includes "Introduction to Watercolor" taught by Judy Meagher, "Building With Clay," taught by Janis Lavine at the Senior Center, and "Drawing Portraits" with Sheila Foley. Reading resident Marjorie Davis offers a unique opportunity with "Writing Down our Stories," Mondays from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m.

Elementary Wind Ensemble, Music Theory, Jazz Theory, Kid's Chorus for ages 5-8, Center Singers at the Senior Center, Theatre Kids for ages 5-8, and Acting Out for ages 9-14 are some of the new Music School offerings this fall.

Creative Arts is a non-profit community music and art school with membership in the National Guild of Community Schools for the Arts. Creative Arts is supported, in part, by the Reading Arts Council, a local agency, the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Dancer offers full program

Currently entering its 11th year, Susan Woods' Dancer of Stoneham is now accepting registration for fall classes. The Dancer, located at 214 Main Street, provides professional training to children, teens, and adults in ballet/point, jazz, streetdance, tap and acrobatics.

There are over 50 classes per week to choose from and day, evening and weekend classes are available. For those families with preschool age children, the Dancer offers an extensive number of classes for younger children to help them learn the basics of dance while having fun at the same time.

The Dancer offers beginner classes to all age groups. In the past, the adult beginner classes have been extremely popular because they provide a time for parents to both learn and relax. Overall, the school's 500+ enrollment speaks for itself. The Dancer is a place where students of all ages can train on a professional level while enjoying class.

In addition to holding regular classes, the Dancer is home to three competing dance companies. Students who wish to join the company participate in an annual audition. The company dancers have to be serious about their dance training because, in addition to weekly rehearsals, these dancers must take a class in ballet, jazz and tap each week. Local competitions and performances also fill the schedule for the companies.

What separates the Dancer from other schools is its ability to offer small and personalized classes. This is possible for two reasons. First, the school has two large studios, which allows for more classes to be scheduled per week. Second, the Dancer's professionally trained teachers each provide disciplined instruction in their specialized fields, while giving special attention to the individual student's needs.

The credentials of these teachers and enrollment information can be found in the school's brochure, which is available at the Dancer or by calling (617) 438-4289.

Is this any
plan for retirement?

It's never too early, or too late, to plan for retirement. And two hours of your time could be the key to a comfortable future.

Those two hours will be spent in a free Practical Investment Seminar offered by Key Investment Services. The discussion will be led by Garry Hennessy, and will focus on the ins and outs of investing for your retirement.

Areas to be covered will include:

- How much will you need for retirement?
- The essentials of a good retirement plan
- What kinds of investment make the most sense?
- How to think things through, then follow through

So don't take a shot in the dark when planning for retirement.

Call (617) 246-0302 to reserve a place in one of our free seminars.

"Trial by Jury" - Short Takes

by Rochelle Lynn

"Trial by Jury" Starring Joanne Whalley-Kilmer, Armand Assante, William Hurt, Gabriel Byrne. Directed by Heywood Gould. Written by Jordan Katz, Gould. Produced by James G. Robinson, Chris Meledandri, Mark Gordon. Rated R.

Consider it cinematic junk food. Heavy-handed, more than a little bloated, but "Trial by Jury" is easy to digest.

Joanne Whalley-Kilmer plays Valerie, the extremely naive divorcee who, naturally, lives on the Upper West Side of Manhattan, owns an antique clothing business, and has a perfect little boy. When called upon for jury duty, she tells her staff she has no intention of "getting out of" her civic responsibility.

Valerie is chosen as a juror in the murder trial of a charming but lethal crime boss (Armand Assante). Gabriel Byrne is the Federal Attorney who so wants to nail Assante that he'd step on almost anyone, use any method, to get his conviction. It is rather obvious that both men, ambitious and competitive, are flip sides of the same coin.

Though played by competent actors, all three main characters are not so much people as plot devices. Luckily, director/co-writer Heywood Gould turned up the suspense level by showing us just how easily someone could step into our lives and take them over. Assante wants an acquittal and chooses Valerie to make this happen. Meanwhile, Byrne's attorney is playing fast and loose with the criminal justice system.

So, don't think about stereotypes or coincidences. Instead, just lean into this taut yarn and enjoy. The pacing is quick and there is an intriguing psychological undercurrent at play. Both the crime boss and the big deal attorney think of Valerie as a virtuous little puppet. Because they recognize her integrity, both men trust her, never considering that her survival instinct is as strong as theirs.

THE MIDDLESEX MALL turned into a Prehistoric Jungle with over twenty life-like dinosaurs for back-to-school. The lucky winner of the home computer giveaway was Cyrielle Jean from Burlington who guessed the correct amount of dinosaur eggs which was 158.

By and large, the supporting cast is more intriguing than the main players, whose emotional states are all over-written and therefore overwrought. The usually angelic Kathleen Quinlan lays a gritty, rather pathetic hit woman with the hots for William Hurt, who walks away with every scene he's in.
